TIERRA DEL PUEGO.

Conflicting Reports Concerning This Comparatively Unknown Country.

The group of islands which form the archipelago of Therra del Fuego have an area of about 80,000 square miles, nearly the same size as England and Scotland. Darwin describes the country as "a mountainous land, partly submerged in the sea, so deep that inlets and bays occupy the place where the valleys should exist. To find an acre of level land in any part of the country is most rare." Don Ramon Lista, however, who has had greater and more recent opportunities of investigation, thinks this description a mistaken one. As reported in Chambers' Journal, he describes Argentine Tierra del Fuego as presenting two aspects. In the north there are valleys more or less extensive, covered with splendid groves, and irrigated by large rivers, some of which are navigable; this region enjoying an agreeable temperature, with very little snow during the winter. South of this be reports that the appearance of the country changes and extended forests appear, where the grass is not as abundant or the rivers so large. The face of the land is in this part something like Switzerland, with small lakes, elevated mountains and valuable linber forests. He seems to think the country capable of great development, for he adds: "On the plains there will yet be planted a great postoral industry, while I believe the mountains will be found to contain valuable mineral deposits."

Traveleus' reports as to the inhabitants of Tierra del Fuego have been conflicting. Some visitors have reported the natives to be stalwart, fine-looking men, and others have described them as small and abject beings. Darwin, whose scientific investigations were conflict to the asouth of the country, says that "one can hardly believe them to be fellow creatures and inhabitants of the same world."

On the other hand, other explorers in the North and Northwest described the Fuegians as powerful men of large stature and warlike instincts. This apparent discrepancy seems to be due to the fact that the land instincts. This apparent discrepancy seems to be due to the fact that the land is inhabited by two very distinct races of Indians. Mr. Brydges, whose long residence in the country enables him to speak with authority on this point, assures us that there are two separate and distinct tribes dwelling in Tierra del Fuego. He calls them, as they call themselves, Onas and Yangans; the former living in the North and the latter in the South. The Onas seem to be almost identical in character, manner and language with the Tuehelcke Indians of Patagonia. Like them, they use bows and arrows in the chase and are muscular, active and well formed. Their number is now much reduced, an epidemic of measies having been very fatal among them a few years age, and the whole tribe probably does not now number more than five hundred persons. They are nomadic and live principally now number more than five hundred persons. They are nomadic and live principally in portable tents, covered with guanaco skins. Mr. Popper did not form a high opinion of their intellectual faculties, judging from the primitive nature of their implements. He describes their tools as consisting for the most part of pieces of iron taken from some vessel cast on shore, and tied to pieces of wood by leather thougs. They have no cances and do not fish, though they pick up on the shore such fish as are left behind after heavy tides. Their only water vessels are large ahelis, but they display some ingenuity in making arrows and baskets.

BIG POKER GAME.

niniscence of Gambling in the Days Before the War. For years gambling on the Mississippi has been a theme written upon and read with interest, says the Chicago Journal How the ideal planter got through with his patrimony; how sixty or seventy bales of cotton or fifteen colored people changed hands in a few hours; but the gambler is always portrayed as a slender, lithe and wellways portrayed as a slender, lithe and well-formed youth, with black hair, dark eyes, high boots and a dirk—dashity cavalier sort of a fellow that would brook no insult. The bluff, good-natured, go-casy man of about thirty-five that did the winning has been ignored. Gambling was heavy and all the large cotton and passenger packets had forward of the cabin a room about twenty-by twenty-five feet, called the social hall. This hall was fitted up in the most luxurious style, with a bar, chairs and card-tables. At these tables all day and all night the planters, river merchants and officers were wont to tempt fortune. The favorite game was draw-poker; but in those times the was draw-poker; but in those times the gentlemen would bet on any thing, from what kind of a fish a man would catch on his line to a steamboat race, and the more a man lost the bigger lion he was. now gambling is carried on to a great extent on all rivers, especially on the Red and Illinois rivers.

The most successful gamblers in antebellum days were George Brooks and "Bullet-neck" Green, so called from a bullet that was lodged in his neck. The latter gentleman played at and won the biggest game ever played on the Mississippi. It was a game of draw poker between himself and three other planters. Green had about $20,000 on board the boat, but the other fellows had oversized his pile, and the game was $100 ante, with no limit. Green held a remarkable hand and had staked his last dollar, but no one would "call" him So, methoding the captain of the vessel to him, be asked for a loan, as he did not want to be run out of the game. To this the captain assented, knowing Green to be a very wealthy man, and he told the clerk to let him have any amount. When these preliminaries were settled, the players went on raising the stakes until $900,000 was on the board, when one of the players called, and Green deliberately laid his cards face down on the table and said: "Boys, if I win the pot I will never turn another card;" then "showed up" four aces and a lung—a hand that can't be beat—as a matter of course, winning. It is estimated that this man won over $250,000 at cards.

The gambler in the days of slavery seldom chested, and when he did and was dis-

THE close of the present Congress ends s'x years of Democratic majority in the House of Representatives. During all that time the party has been howling for revenue reduction, yet that Democratle majority has failed to do a ything toward the end. It has not reduced the revenues one dollar. The capacity of the Democratic party for actual business is clearly shown in this, It remind. us of the point of a story Lincoln once told as giving his estimate of a certain General-"big on dresparade, but when actual fighting comes, not there."

THOSE California papers which are endeavoring to be facetious over the request of a Nevada Legislative delegation for the cession to Nevada of that part of the Golden State lying east of the summit of the Sierras, entirely ignore the wishes and convenience of a least three of the California counties directly interested, to-wit: Alpine, Mono and Inyo.

THE matter of ballot reform is being taken hold of in earnest by the California and other State Legistatures, and the signs all point to a general remodeling of election laws so as to secure a secret ballot to every citizen, free from intimidation or the charge of bribery.

Net cash, to county..... The committee to which was as-

The committee to which was assigned this duty, state the well known fact that no grand jury can possibly make a complete examination of the county's book-keeping. It is not every business man who is capable of enering a strange office and following every item entered on the books through the maze of figures, and see that the correct entries are made everywhere, and the proper amount paid into the treasury. To keep a committee at this task for six months would impose a serious burden on the would impose a serious burden on the tax-payers, and yet it is a duty these same tax-payers owe to themselves as well as to their officers. This work well as to their officers. This work has never been done, or not for many years at least, and the committee invored such a plan. An expert could be employed to go over the books systematically and in a few months he would have accomplished what cursory examinations by different grand juries can never do. In this report our committee checked all the items in the Sheriff's books and found that he held the Treasurer's receipts for the several amounts. The County Clerk's office held receipts for all the entries in his books. The Auditor's and Treasurer's are checked out correctly, and their offices are kept in a neat and business-like manner. In making an examination of the ac-counts of the Assessor's and District Attorney's offices, we found nothing to report. Fees were paid over from one, and personal property tax and poll taxes from the other, as required

The suggestion that the books experted, should by no means be taken as a reflection on our county officers, whom we believe to be competent and trustworthy, but even the risk of errors in addition or copying should be guarded against, and every business needs an occasional technical examination. We would discourage the practice of accepting private deposits of coin by the county officers. It involves risk and may lead to complications. The bills of the School Boards and County Commissioners have been checked and found to have been properly entered in the Auditor's books, and the correct amounts paid out of the Treasury. a reflection on our county officers erly entered in the Auditor's books, and the correct amounts paid out of the Treasury.

Our attention was drawn by the District Attorney to written objections from his office, filed with a number of such bills, and we present herewith his written opinion as to certain illegal claims allowed. He questions the right of the Board to allow the sum of $305 to Auditor Williams for extra salaries, claiming that there can be no change from the sum named in the act passed by the Legislature. For the same reason be objects to the $12 paid to the Sheriff; $54 paid to the Treasurer, and to $89.45 to the Clerk, for extra help; claiming that whether the expenditures were wise or otherwise they were unwarranted by law, and that the sworn officers should be the last men to disregard a plain provision of the statutes. He classes in the same category the charge of $10 for printing an answer of the Commissioners and Auditor to the report of the Grand Jury, of March 12, 1888.

We find that the Commissioners have immense powers with no responsibility to any one except on election day. For years grand jury after grand jury recommended, soolded and protested without avail; only a year ago, it was ventilated by the Grand Jury that about $800, in extra salaries, had been paid out, and they recommended that the practice be discontinued.

brought against any one, except on the order of the board, and if an extravagant or corrupt set of officers should pay out half the county, there would be no remedy so long as the board "stood in." It might be well to change the law, so that the County Commissioners would be required to give bonds, and also giving the District Attorney authority to begin suit for the county when payments are made in excess of those allowed by law.

Trifling repairs are suggested our Committees on Public Buildin our Committees on Public Buildings, among them the pointing up of the county Court-house with cement, re-pairs in the jail floor and the main hall kalsomined.

The jails at Verdi and Wadsworth need repairs, the bridges at Franktown, Glendale and Lorgomosini's require riprapping and the one at Glendale a general overheal dale a general overhauling.

Many bridges over irrigating ditches are absolutely dangerous and should be kept in repair or changed to a safer The Reno Electric Light Company have so constructed their dam as to endanger the abutements of the cattle bridge, and we suggest that they be bridge, and we suggest that they be compelled to construct their dam below the bridge, or at least not use any part of the bridge as a dam. As it stands now the first flood is likely to carry away the bridge.

We strongly recommend that immediate steps be taken to remove the cattle corrals, now on the Orr ditch about a mile west of Reno, to some location where the paissoness offal caps. cation where the poisonous offal can-not contaminate the waters used for drinking and cooking purposes by the

The committees on the different townships have little to report outside of Reno. The Constable's office at Wadsworth was found without any books or records at all, and he is re-commended to keep such in future, as required by law.

The burden imposed on the County Treasury by the arrest of vagrants in the town of Reno, seems to have been lightened but little by the stirring relightened but little by the stirring report of the Grand Jury a year ago. In speaking of the immense number of arrests made of drunks, vagrants and Indians, charged to the county as criminal business and paid for out of the County Treasury, it said: "It appears to this jury that the office of Constable was being worked for all it is worth." It cost the county about a thousand dollars for the Constable and fustice fees in cases that never came Justice fees in cases that never came to trial. The Constable would gather up a poor vagrant or tramp and bring him up before the Justice, who finding him guilty of no crime and with no prospect of his committing any, would exact a promise that he would leave town and turn him loose. This little peration costs the county $5.10 per head, of which $2.40 goes to the Justice and $2.70 to the Constable. This is the minimum, and it is often raised a dollar or two by a postponement or rearraignment. We don't recommend that the officers be less vigilant or that vagrants be given the freedom of the town, but we do think freedom of the town, but we do think this item of expense too heavy. There is no risk involved in such arrests and out little time and labor expended, and it is our opinion that these officers are overpaid. We doubt the right of the Justice to charge for a motion every time his court performs an act in the trial of a tramp or vagarant. We examined the accounts of the township officers and the result is given in the following table of figures. The moneys there reported as fines were paid into the treasury and the fees drawn out are those allowed in their reports.

Total $2,675 62 we have to report, so far as the welfare of our community is concerned, is the failure of house-owners in Reno to should not be an hour's unnecessary town is of a gravelly and porous na-ture, absorbing the poisons from rot-ting debris and excrematory matter, and carrying them for blocks to mix with contamination from other sources, making death-dealing gases of the strongest character. If this is to con-tinue a harvest of death will be reaped here that will make Reno famous for filth, like other towns in history. Wherever it is practicable, the close used should be in a warm house wherever it is practicable, the closet used should be in a warm house where it is not in danger of being frozen up. To keep a stream of water running to prevent, may exhaust the water supply at a critical time, leaving the town in a defenseless condition in case of fire.

A number of taxpayers complain that the savers are not extended into that the sewers are not extended into their neighborhood, and they have to pay their share of the tax without a corresponding benefit. We find a corresponding benefit. We find a laudable disposition on the part of the Commissioners to extend the system as fast as possible to all necessary quarters of the town.

Undeservedly Laughed at. The unthinking are prone to make game of nervousness. Yet this is a very real and serious affiction, the harassing symptoms o which are rendered all the more poignant by ridicule. The stomach is usually resp ridicule. The stomach is usually responsible for these symptoms—its weakness and disorder find a reflex in the brain, which is the headquarters of the nervous system. As a nerve 'onic and tranquillizer, we believe that not one can be pointed out so effective as Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. In renewing vigorous digestion it strikes the key note of recovery of strength and quietude by the nerves. Headache, tremors in quiet sleep, abnormal sensitiveness to unexpected noises—all these modify and ultimately disappear as the system gains strength from the great tonic. Dyspepsia, billousness, rheumatism, constipation and kidney complaints are subdued by the Bitters.

It was just an ordinary scrap of wrapping paper, but it saved her life. She was in the last stages of consumption, told by physicians that she was incurable and could live only a pounds. On a piece of wrapping paper she read of Dr. King's New Discovery, and got a sample bottle; it helped her, she bought a other and grew better fast, continued its use and is now strong, healthy, rosy, plump, weighing 140 pounds. MRS SHODDY'S LIBRARY.

The Shoddy family, says the Boston Hereis, purchase books because "It is the thing to do." Mr. Shoddy accests the salesman with: "I want some books!"

"Well, sir; what books!"

"O, I dunno. Give me some handsome ones. I don't care what they cost. That's a fine lot over there; let's have a dozen of 'em."

fine lot over there; let's have a dozen of 'em."

Mrs. Shoddy's requirements are more exacting: With her it is "a matter of size" shows all things. Her book shelves are only seven inches spart and immerable; she must have "something that fits." She buys many books, but she never buys one that is more than seven inches tall. She has no use for a volume that exceeds that measurement. Her shelves contain half a dozen sets each of Browning, Tennyson, Scott, all put there to "fill up," and to impress her literary friends. It has never occurred to her to change her book-cases for others having adjustable shelves, or if the thought has come to her, she feels that it is not worth putting into execution; therefore, though she has books in plenty, they are all of a size, and the assortment is limited.

The Ornate family buy books for the splendor thereof. The poets, philosophort, wits, novelists of the ages have no charms for them if not decked out in brilliant leather or cloth of gold. The paper must be the heaviest, the type the clearost, the illustrations abundant, the ornamentation exceeding that of the golden filigree work of Zamara. Expense is the only consideration, and the greater the expense the quicker will the Ornate family buy. If they ever look between the covers of their many volumes nobody has yet caught them in the act. They are the targets for the publisher who is getting out an echtion de luxe. They he to them a thing with a name, and nothing is to them a thing with a name, and nothing never buy a book if it is cheap. Literature is to them a thing with a name, and nothing more. They are of no assistance to authors the harvests they leave are gleaned by the publishers alone. Rare books delight them publishers alone. Rare books delight them not, however expensive, unless it can be said of them: "Solomon, in all his glory, was not arrayed like one of these." They are in high feather at holiday lime, for costly volumes then abound. Ignorant of chapter and verse, the Ornate family seek only the tomes that come in gorgeous dress.

It is one of the most difficult undertakings to attempt to convince the ignorant

ings to attempt to convince the ignorant buyer that there is any virtue in the "gilt top" of a book. He will have it gilded top, bottom and front, or not at all. He regards a "gilt top" as an imposition, a sham or a aly design for cheating his purse. "You must think me a greeny," he says, "if you suppose I'm to be taken in by any thing of that sort. A little gilding won't deceive me, sir. I don't buy a book for that." Nor me, sir. I don't ouy a book for that." Nor for rough and uncut edges in the English style can others be induced to part with their dollars. "Those jagged, uneven things" betray to them a book half made. They want their "money's worth." Some there are who deem wide margins a waste of space and good paper, while others will have nothing else.

COSSACK OR UHLAN,

Russia's Light Borsemen Compared with the German Cavalry. Following is an extract from Leuten

Although it has been customary to speak of all German cavalry as ublant ou account of their success in Prussian wars, these cavalry, as well as those of Austria, are of their success in Prussian wars, these cavalry, as well as those of Austria, are composed of lancers, hussars, cuirassiers and dragoons. The Russian cavalry, with the exception of a few fancy regiments of the guard, may be said to have been completely transformed into dragoons since 1882. The Germans preserve the traditions of the beau sobreur, and affect the headlong charge and the use of cold steel. If they have conceded something to the fire-weapon in allowing some carbines and revolvers to be carried, it has been under a certain amount of pretest. They do not propose to use these weapons on horseback, "except as a signal." They feel, however, that sometime it may be necessary to diamount to fight on foot, but for this our German cavalier always feels bound to apologize. The Russians, on the contrary, have discarded cold steel for hot lead. They are armed principally with the carbines and revolvers, which they use well on foot and on horseback. They are the first European natives to acknowledge that environment in the practice of the Peace; for the poundations of the Peace; for the paulishment of the Peace; for the poundations of the paulishment of the practice of courts of the design in the practice of the present sundations of the paulishment of the practice of courts of the paulishment of the paulishment of the practice of the design in the practice of courts of the paulishment of the paulishment of the paulishment of the paulishment of courts of the paulishment of the paulishment of remains of the paulishment of the paulishment of remains of the paulishment of remains of the paulishment of remains of the Justices of courts of courts of the paulishment of the paulishment of courts of courts of the paulishment of courts of courts of the paulishment of courts of courts of paulishment of courts of paulishment of courts of courts of paulishment of courts of courts of paulishment of courts of c distinctive attributes of cavalry. They will apply to the fullest extent the cavalry leasons taught by Sheridan and Forrest in this country, and will be the first to give to Europe the idea of a cavalry army moving with celerity, crossing rivers and mountains without a base of supplies, attacking infantry, cavalry, breastworks or gunboats, wherever opportunity occurs. The world may be prepared for a new surprise when the light horsemen of Russia join battle with the ponderous horsemen of Middle Europe.

outnumbering the cavalry of Germany and Austria combined by nearly a hundred thousand.

Imagine 200,000 of such soldiers as Nez Perce Jeseph, and White Bird, and Oilicut, Joseph's brother, led across mountains and through rivers for fifteen hundred miles, baffling ten times their number, in 1877. Drill them in advance of modern tactics, give them the confidence of a powerful natios, arms of the latest mode, artiliery of their own, and educate the chiefs in every phase of the modern trade of war, and you will form some idea of the cavalry that now awaits the world of the Crar along the Western Border of Russia in Europe.

Love and the Locust Bushes.

About forty years ago there was a young lady is Lincoln County, Ga., who had two sweethearts, and, not being able to decide between the two, she set out two wild locust bushes in the yard, naming one for each of her lovers, and believing in the old adage, "if he loves me thatbush will grow," and "according to her faith so it happened unto her." One of the bushes very soon withered, but the other flourished, and, in the course of time, she married the gentleman for whom the growing bush was named. They reised a large family, who are well known throughout several counties, and the locust bush also grew and multiplied. Time has laid bare the spot upon which the old dwelling stood, and nothing remains to mark the site of this once happy home but the locust bushes, of which there is a complete hedge about one hundred yards in length. This may seem to some a fairy tale, but it is absolutely true. The lady is a Methodist minister's daughter, and the gentleman a Baptist minister's brother.
